IVY CITY RACE TRACE, WASHINGTON, D. C. Nov. 2.—This is the second of the National Jockey Club's extra days, and, as the weather is most delightful, in fact, quite warm, there is a large attendance. The track is a trifle heavy, but rapidly improving. Mr. Phil Dwyer says that the report telegraphed to New York that Hanover is broken down is premature, that the colt is a thousand per cent. better than yesterday and took good walking exercise this morning.

The racing was very similar to that on Tuesday, an "in and out" day for the Tuesday, an "in and out" day for the favorites. Glenmound, who was a good second choice, beat Wilfred, the favorite, for the first race. For the second, Joe Lee, an 8 to 1 chance, won easily, the favorite, Rita R., unplaced. For the third, Swift, a big favorite, won easily, and the fourth race was also won by the favorite, Theodosius. The last race was a steeplechase for Districtowned horses, gentlemen riders, which Mr. Thompson's Sherrod, ridden by Mr. Tompkins, won easily.

Thompson's Sherron, the kins, won easily.

A match has been made for $500 a side, to be run to morrow, at five furlongs, between Freedom and Armstrong, at catch weights.

DOOMED ANARCHISTS.

Unfavorable Decision of the U. S. Supreme Court.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The Supreme Court denies the application for a writ of error in the Anarchists' cases. The opinion of the Court, which was delivered by Chief-Justice Waite, was quite lengthy and entered fully into every detail presented by the petitioners. The court prepared the review of argument with the statement that questions only would be considered, the character of which en-with the statement that questions only would be considered, the character of which entitled them to presentation in the Supreme Court of the United States.

The decision of the Supreme Court of Illinois as to the limitation of State as well as Federal power by the Fourteenth Amendment was then deciared affirmed. The alleged disqualification of two of the jurors in the original trial on account of expressed opinions was reviewed at length and the verbatim examination read. The Court held that in the first case the jurors were accepted by the defense when 142 peremptory challenges still remained to that side. In the case of the other juror the peremptory challenges being exhausted and challenge for cause being overruled and accepted by both sides, the question could not be raised here, as it was not within the exclusive jurisdiction of the State Court and had been decided by the Supreme Court as confirming strictly to the State law. The claim that Spies, after testifying in his own case, was improperly cross-examined should have been made in the State Court only as it concerned State jurisdiction solely and could not be considered here.

The question of rights guaranteed under the treaty with Germany should have been raised in the State courts.

windows of Hodel's house. An alarm was at once sounded. Men ran through the village crying "Fire!" and calling for the formation of a bucket brigade. All the citizens ran to put out the fire. The post-office and places of business were left to take care of themselves.

The first men to reach the house with axes and buckets of water made the startling discovery that Mrs. Hodel had been murdered. The excitement grew into frenzy.

The indignation against Hodel grew into an almost uncontrollable rage. Hot-headed men wanted to lynch him without delay.

The town constable with a posse of angry men, found Hodel and placed him under arrest. A few cool-headed men prevented any outbreak of violence against him. Hodel was thoroughly frightened.

As Turnerville is a village of fewer than 100 people, the triple tragedy put a stop to all sorts of work and business for the day. The village is on the Air Line Railroad, about twenty miles cast of Portland. It is in Tolland County, and is sursurrounded by well-cultivated farms. A branch of the Connecticut River runs by the village. The people are prosperous, peace-loving farmers, whose only diversion is the discussion of politics at the post-office.

Hodel is a silk weaver in the employ of P. W. Turner & Co., of Turnerville. He is thirty-five years ef age. He went to bed craxy drunk last night. He arose very early this morning and killed his wife with a shot-gun.

The two children, who were smothered. has steadfastly refrained from airing his opinions in the columns of the daily newspapers.

"What do you think, Mr. Tucker, of the refusal of the Supreme Court to grant a writ of error in the Anarchists' cases?"

"It is what I expected, just as the action of the Illinois Supreme Court in denying a new trial was what I expected. I have never had the slightest hope since the day the verdict was rendered that a chance to reverse it would ever be allowed. Those who have entertained hope have not fully realized the purpose of the propertied classes in ordering their tools, the governing classes, to persecute these unfortunate victims to the death. The authorities and the capitalists know perfectly well that if a new trial could be had there would be no more chance of convicting these men of the murder of Policeman Degan than there was of acquitting them at the trial of last year; and as the object of the powers that be is not to punish guilt, but to terrify labor agitators and prevent all discussion of the labor question, if they do not punish these men they can find nobody to punish. They are determined that the death sentences shall be carried out. As a Chicago business man said to a friend of mine the other day:

What the highest court of the country has now sanctioned is the most horrible judicial murder ever committed in any country. I am used to the Czar's methods of terrorism and violence, but even in Russia an execution of this kind would be an utter impossibility. Vers Sassulitch, who shot Gen. Trepoff, was acquitted by a Russian jury, although she gloried in what she had done. Here seven innocent men have been convicted by an American jury and will be hanged by an American sheriff under the protection of the glorious Stars and Stripes, not for what they have done, but for opinions they have expressed."

"Profoundly edistressed, but not surprised," was Gen. Roger A. Pryor's comments on the news. "There is no hope now but Executive elemency."

Jenny Lind was born at Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 21, 1821. Her first appearance on any stage was in London. She made her debut there at the Queen's Theatre, as Alice in "Bobert Le Diable" May 4, 1841. She came to this country two years later. Her first appearance was 'at Castle Garden Concert Hall, under the management of P. T. Barnum, Sept. 11, 1850. The interest which she aroused among the residents is too well known to need repetition. The salary she received was $1,000 per night. The receipts from the first night's concert were over $17,000. After a series of concerts here she went to Boston, appearing at the Howard Hail. After leaving there she made a tour of the principal cities, meeting with great success. One little incident in her career probably not generally known was a very heated argument which she had with Barnum. According to reports it appears that one night, in Philadelphia, being unable to obtain a hall, Barnum compelled her to sing in a stable. She was so caraged over the affair that she shortly afterward dissolved the contract between herself and Barnum. When her mother died, Dec. 29, 1851, she abandoned her concerts.

Peb. 5, 1852, she was married in Boston, Mass., to Otto Goldschmidt, a planist. Her last appearance in America was in May, 1852.
